NORTH CAROLINA.

The Championship of the South will be Decided Ere the Ban Go & Down-All to in Readir out.

HIS evening at 3 o'clock the great anball between the universities of Virginia and of North Carolina will take who reached the city this morning, and who will continue to arrive until 2 o'clock to-day.

The University of North Carolina team arrived in the city yesterday afternoon, and are quartered at the Exchange Hotel. They are as fine a looking team as has yet been seen on the southern gridiron, and are in the pink of physical condition for the great struggle this afternoon. For the past six weeks they have been coached by irvine, of Frinceton, and have made marked improvement of late. Their tackling and interference is said to be particularly effective, and the team as a whole, as well as individually, will show up well with their opposents to-day.

When I saw Captain Baskerville last night he said he tully realized that his men had a hard task before them, and he by no heart failed to appreciate the merits of the Virginians on the gridiron. They we a strong aggregation, he knew, and played the gaine for all that could be gotten out of it. At the same time the Carolingians had been rigidly trained, and They we., a strong aggregation, he knew, and played the gaine for all that could be gotten out of it. At the same time the Carolinians had been rigidly trained, and were ready for the struggle. They had come to Richmond to dispute the championship of the South, and they were prepared to play the best game they ever put up. His men were determined to give the brawny Virginians a tight contest, and the wearers of the orange and blue would by no means have a walkover. The Virginians, said he, had derived the benefits of the very best training, and had the advantage of superior weight; yet the Carolinians possessed a high degree of determination and courage, which played a conspicuous part on the foot-ball field.

Captain Baskerville was not prepared to foot-ball field.

Captain Easkerville was not prepared to give an opinion as to the result of the game. He could not say that the Carolinians would win, though he believed firmly they would score.

AN IMMENSE CROWD.

AN IMMENSE CROWD.

There is every reason to believe there will be an immense crowd to witness the game when the two teams line up this afternoon. Already the wearers of the Virginia and North Carolina colors can be seen on every side, and an enterprising firm on Main street has sold a large number of neck-ties made of orange and blue and white and blue sik. Quite a number of the city have been decorated with the colors of the two institutions, and the streets will to-day present a lively appearance, with the enflusiastic collegians and the sympathizers with the tespective teams. A conspicuous fact Jack the Prowler.

The publication exclusively in The Times yesterday of the operations of "A Jack, the Prowler," in Monroe Park and other parts of the West-End has brought to light a number of other cases where ladies suffered annoyances in the same way.

Although Mr. J. Henry Kracke, the keeper of Monroe Park, was notified and kept a sharp lookout for the offender, he was unable to identify the man, as he selected times when nobody was near to offer his likaliting attentions to the young ladies traversing the park.

The Third district police were instructed to watch out for him, and an officer in citizens clothes waiched the park for some time without any greater success. The assault made on a well-known young tady of Franklin street by a negro boy was the most serious case of all. An afternoon paper says the police decline to credit this story. The statement of the young lady who was assuited were secured before the mater was published in the paper, and the collegians and the sympathizers with the respective teams. A conspicuous fact is that most of the Richmend Cellege students are wearing North Carolina celers. The Carolinians have gained much ground of late years in the estimation of Richmonders, and the Farheels have grown quite popular here.

The Petersburg delegation will roll into the city several hundred strong this morning, and a large number of Carolinians will arrive on the early morning train over the Southern railway, from Danville, Greensboro, Durham, Raleigh, and other points. In addition to these, and the Charlottesytle contingent already menticled, a special train, with probably ticited, a special train, with probably five hundred foot-ball fiends, from Nor-folk and Fortsmouth, will reach Richmond about noon, while Manchester will be well represented, and some five thousand people from Richmond will probably attend the game.

B CUPTION AT THE COMMONWEALTH. The reception to be tendered this even-g from 2:20 to 8:20 o'clock, at the Com-onwealth Club, by the University of resinia alumni of Richmond, promises monwealth Club, by the University of Virginia alumni of Richmond, promises to be one of the most brilliant social affairs at that famous club-house for some time. A large number of the most cultured people in the city will be present, and nothing has been overlooked by the committee in charge to make the affair a brilliant social event. There will be many distinguished people present, and a sumptuous repast will be served. The details of the arrangements for the recession were published in yesterday's Times.

The last issue of "College Topics," a paper published at the University of Virginia, contains the words of a number of songs written to be sung by the varsity sympaciizers on the grounds this afternoon. The cover of the paper contains the following:

FROM THE COMMITTEE.

A Number of Street Improvements in Va.

A Number of Street Improv. meets in Various Sections of the City.

The Committee on Streets held its monthly meeting in room No. 5 of the City Hall last evening. There were present Messre, Allen (chairman), Bahen, Boykin, Blanks, Bloomberg, Gray, Kind, McDowell, Mann and Page A good deal of discussion was indulged in over the question of establishing a grade for Canal street, between Madison and Jefferson streets, which would involve considerable filling-in at some places. Messrs, James Werth, Samuel H. Pulliam and Carl Wippermann, the latter representing Mrs. Wilheimina Schmidt, all interested property owners, opposed the improvement, and it was sinally decided, on motion of Mr. King, that the committee, with the City Engineer, visit the spot on next Tuesday at 4 o'clock.

A proposition was received from Major Lewis Ginter for the changing of the sewer on Brooke avenue, near Bacon Quarter branch. Major Ginter being willing to grant the right of way over his property for that pupose. In connection with that matter the committee was asked to replace the present bridge over the branch on Brooke avenue by an fron one, to be thirty-six feet wide, the Brooke Turnpike Company being willing to pay half of the expenses. The whole matter was referred to the Ward Committee and City Engineer, for report as to expense, etc.

MAC COURT-HOUSE.

ACCOMAC COURTHOUSE, VA., Nov. 28.—Special.—This third day of the trial of Arthur W. and William L. Wright, for the murder of John H. Fisher, was resumed promptly by the County Court at 10 o'clock this morning. No abatement of interest by the public was visible. In fact, the court-room was densely packed with attentive listeners. No undue excitement prevailed, but rather a profound sorrow for the situation. The defence announced that it had no further testimony to offer, and but a short time was consumed in rebuttal.

Five instructions were offered, embodying the law of the case as viewed by Mr. James H. Fletcher, Jr., attorney for the Commonwealth, and were objected to by the defendants' counsel, but the Court very slightly modified the fifth instruction and gave them all to the jury.

MR FLETCHER'S ARGUMENT. (A. S. Gray and H. T. Sutton).

Next to the prize song, the one with perhaps the most merit is that which is thoughtfully dedicated to The Times in general and to Mr. Hiden in particular, and as that gentleman follows the ball on the field to-day, gathering further information about the intricacles of the game, the music of those words will doubtless reach his ears quite often. Here is The Times sons:

MR FLETCHER'S ABGUMENT. Mr. Fletcher then strongly argued the case, insisting that the evidence made out the case to the jury as a clear killing with premeditation and malice aforethought, without justification or excuse, and that the prisoners had forfeited their lives.

The defence were doubtless much hampered in their intended line of argument

The defence were doubtless much hampered in their intended line of argument as to threats and conduct of the deceased, tending to show a harbored intent to kill or do bodily harm to defendants. Much of such evidence sought to be introduced was ruled out by the Court, but Mr. Blackstone and Mr. Wescott, believing their clients had done nothing but what any other men of spirit would have done under like circumstances, with logical and eloquent force of argument, strove to impress the jury to like belief. The prisoners and their near kin, their aged mother. Arthur's wife of less than a year, broke down and wept bitterly as Mr. Wescott impassionately proclaimed that John H. Fisher had put in operation himself the things to bring about his death. He had repeatedly and gratuitously insulted the prisoners, and on the occasion of the homicide had gone down in the grave of an honored father and visited upon his memory dishonest acts in life, which no man believed; that then only did William L. Wright, with characteristic Virginia maniliness, caring nothing for self, resent, at the risk of his own life and liberty, the insult to the father dead, but in memory revered and honored.

of the Methodist Church.

NORFOLK, VA., Nov. 28.—Special.—
Rev. Sam Small has editorially attacked Bishop Haygood on account of a statement made by him at the Charlottesville Conference a few days ago, when the proposition was under consideration to rebuke Dr. Steel, of the Epworth Era, for associating "bishops and barkeepers in the headlines of an article written by him.

The editorial in the Pilot was more than a half column in length, and was headed "Bishops and Barkeepers." In referring to the statement of Bishop Haygood, "that he alone was responsible for using his powers as a bishop to compel Sam Jones to locate and cease conference relations." Mr. Small says "to do this he violates a strained construction of a law, by the breach of which he, the bishop, has himself profited immensely for a long series of years."

It is not necessary to say that this vigorous denunciation of the popular Methodist bishop produced indignation. The preachers who voted to condemn. The Steel will hardly applaud Mr. Small's editorial.

Meeting Beld Last Night which Seemed to Have that Object in View.

The first of a proposed series of open meetings under the auspices of the Central Trade and Labor Council was held last evening at Ellett's riall.

Although the meeting was fairly well advertised, the attendance was quite small and slow in being called to order.

Mr. W. H. Munien, the chairman of the Labor Council, who presided, referred with regret to the small attendance, he ex-late, was called on for a few words of encouragement. He said his position on the matter was well understood; that he a short time ago introduced a bill to have the sewer and other dirt work for the city done by day labor at $1.50; that he found it useless to put it at $2; but for some reason he could not get a quorum of the committee. He could not say why, but had his own opinion. The committee was requested to be relieved, and the matter was put in the shape of an ordinance, and was carried by a vote of 16 to 11. The matter had been referred to the City Attorney for his opinion as to whether a nected with the labor council, said in the course of his remarks that "the time had come for retrenchment and reform in city affairs; that the workingmen had exhibited their power in the control of the city on one occasion, and that they could do so again, and if need be, put out the city officers and select them from their own ranks."

Mr. Henry Mahone suggested that when the meeting adjourned, it he with the purpose in view of going into a reform movement. A number of other speeches were made along similar lines to those above expressed, and the spirit of a reform movement is milar to the one which existed some years ago seemed to be very strong, and the impression which would naturally be made on the mind of a visitor to the meeting would be that the meetings were called distinctively for working up such a movement.

The time and place of the next meeting will be announced by the Central Trades and Labor Council.
